Woman Who Gives Seances
Says She Can Free Friend at Her Trial.

MAKES A GUESS ON WADE
Comes From Trance and Announces Convicted Man
Will Never Hang.

Special Despatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD.
BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Feb. 19.—Dolly Delameter, who has interpreted the past and delved into the future for more than half the women of this town, says that Mrs. Ethel Hutchins Nott will not be convicted of participating in the murder of her husband, George E. Nott. She says that the spirit of George Nott came to her while she was deep in her scheduled trance last Wednesday night and repeated "I'm sorry! I'm sorry!" so often and with such compassion that it left no doubt in the mind of Miss Delameter that the murdered man sought to vindicate his widow and convey to mortal man the fact that she had no part in the affair for which Elwood B. Wade already has been convicted and sentenced to be hanged.

Dolly Delameter will take the witness stand in Mrs. Nott's defense, she says. Whether such testimony as she longs to offer is admissible or legally may be offered before a jury has yet to be determined. But between now and the time that Mrs. Nott goes on trial Dolly Delameter says she will attempt to project herself through the mist between the subliminal self and the soul of George Nott and get his own story of his own murder.

Miss Delameter was one of Mrs. Nott's dearest friends. Immediately after the latter's arrest, Miss Delameter became guardian of the accused woman's children—Ruth, who is 12 years old, and George, a year younger. Both these youngsters live with their mother's friend now and take active part in the seances Dolly Delameter conducts in her home Wednesday nights. Ruth, who has the deep, feverish eyes of her mother and a rather unearthly pallor susceptible to hectic flushes, plays the piano at the seances, assisting Miss Delameter to fall tranquilly into her trances by softly thinking "Dearest, My God, to Thee," and such old fashioned hymns.

Boy Is Usher at Seances.

The boy, less ethereal and more robust than his sister, does the ushering and attends to the mechanical end of the business Wednesday evenings in the Delameter house. With vast enthusiasm and rare intelligence, George answers the door bell, sees that guests are seated and, at a given signal, switches off the electric lights.

Today Dolly Delameter said that she had been in communication with the spirit of George Nott several times, but that only once had she held conversation with him while others were present. "That was last Wednesday night," she said. "George's voice came to me. It was indistinct—somewhat vague. The atmosphere had not been prepared. But while we had not prepared for his coming to us I saw him vaguely, dimly, through a haze. I heard his voice and in a little while understood what he was saying. It came unexpectedly, suddenly."

"Over and over again he repeated it. 'I'm sorry; oh, I'm sorry,' he kept saying. It was all very clear to me. I understood the meaning of words—the hidden meaning. There can be but one interpretation. It means that Ethel Nott cannot be guilty of murdering her husband or having anything to do with it."

Dolly in a Trance Again.
This afternoon Dolly Delameter went into another trance. Just before the trial of Elwood Wade, now in Wethersfield jail awaiting hanging, she predicted that "that youth will never walk the streets of Bridgeport again." Today from somewhere in the beyond she received news that assured her that "the State will never take his life."

She did not go into explanation. Spiritually she may have meant that the Governor was going to commute Wade's sentence to imprisonment for life or that she was merely speaking in the occult sense and meant that "only the body dies; the soul passes on."

After today's trance Miss Delameter told the two children to the Fairfield jail to see their mother. State's Attorney Cummings will return here Tuesday and it is expected that he then will set a date for the trial of Mrs. Nott. The trial is expected to develop into a series of dramatic episodes.

POLICEMAN'S VISIONS AS LIFE SAVER FADE

Young Woman Gives Him
Abuse for His Effort.

Policeman William Parks of the Bedford avenue station, Brooklyn, once heard somebody say that when a pretty woman examines the landscape to make sure there are no spectators and then raises a bottle to her lips, she is decidedly about to commit suicide. Some one else told him that in such circumstances the proper thing to do is to strike the bottle from the woman's hand and lock her up.

Yesterday Parks saw a young woman look cautiously out from behind a waiting room on the Williamsburg Bridge plaza. He watched her from behind a surface car and shivered with apprehension as she raised a small bottle.

"Hey, you," he shouted, running toward her. "What is that bottle you're trying to do?" and he knocked the bottle halfway down the plaza and seized her.

Instead of dropping her head on his shoulder and sobbing out a story of a hasty romance, the young woman glared.

"You take your hands off me," she said. "Don't I revive myself with smelling salts after riding across the bridge in these cars without having you butt in?"

ARCHBISHOPAL HOME IS DESTROYED BY FIRE

Nurse Gives Warning in St.
John's, N. F., Blaze.

St. John's, N. F., Feb. 19.—A nurse watching over a sick priest in the residence of the Roman Catholic Archbishop of St. John's early today discovered fire, which destroyed the structure. Promptness in giving the alarm saved the lives of the Archbishop, Vicar-General, eight other clergymen and the domestic staff.

Candles being used to light the house since the electric lighting system of the city was put out of commission by last week's blizzard. A scanty water supply and a temperature of 10 below zero made fire fighting hazardous. It was with great difficulty that the cathedral and other church buildings near by were saved.

The loss was estimated at $60,000.

MORE EVIDENCE IN JAGER CASE

Election Canvasser Heard by Legislative Sub-Committee.

Further testimony tending to show that Assemblyman Henry Jager, elected to the Legislature from the Fourteenth (Kings county) district last fall, was a resident of Maywood, N. Y., and therefore ineligible to be a legislator in New York, was taken yesterday by the sub-committee of the Assembly Judiciary Committee.

Last September Mark Masters, an election canvasser, called at the home owned by Mrs. Jager in Maywood and asked her if any legal voters lived there. She gave the name of Assemblyman Jager as well as that of herself. Later Jager scratched his name off the enrollment list posted in public but never took the legal means to have his registration cancelled.

The hearing will be continued at the Murray Hill Hotel on Friday.

COIN BREAKS IN TEST; SHOTS FIRED IN CHASE

Action of Newsboy Leads to Arrest on Broadway.

A counterfeit quarter that broke into three pieces when a septic newsboy tested it on the pavement at Eighth avenue and Sixteenth street last night led to the arrest of Gietana Scarlevina of 20 East Twelfth street on a charge of trying to pass spurious money. Scarlevina was captured at Broadway and Fourteenth street after two shots had been fired at him.

At the West Twentieth street station, where he was locked up, Herman Rogers, the newsboy, said Scarlevina handed him the quarter and asked for change. Rogers tested the "coin" according to the most approved methods of the newsboys. The Italian was half a block away before the fragments could be picked up, he said.
